

Oodles of Noodles

Here's an added tip from DWF member Larry Strasser:

I have used the same idea for my crawler harness' and wrap a piece of canvas around it with a rubber band to keep my harness' with trebles on the end from stickin me and other things.

By Mike Barkley

In case you didn't recognize the item in the picture, it is sold in toy stores, pool stores and even drug stores (CVS, Rite-Aid, etc.) under the Noodle brand name. They come in numerous shapes, from round to square and everything in-between, and sell for $1.99 for a 5 ft "noodle". They are easily converted to very handy live bait rig holders way around so that groove and prevents paneling nail into the enough sticking out to as you wrap you around it. After you leader around it just stick the hook into the noodle to hold it in place.

I cut notches around the noodle every inch or so all the the each leader has it's own tangling. Push a common middle of the groove, with just hook the loop of the leader on to leader wrap the Noodles are made of a very lightweight, durable, rigid material that is easily cut and shaped. I'm sure that be able to find many uses for them.

styrofoam type creative anglers will

Like many anglers, I enjoy making much of my own equipment and adapting common items into useful fishing aids. If you have some things that you use, please share them with the rest of us.